Please note: The U. S. House of Representatives will be on recess during the Washington Conference. Therefore, the national commander's testimony will not take place in February. Rather, the national commander's testimony will be held Wednesday, March 13. Only commission chairmen who will testify and national officers will be called in to this testimony. The remaining seats in the testimony room will be occupied by Legionnaires from Maryland and Virginia. Testimony details will be released later.

During the 2024 Washington Conference February 25-28, even though the House of Representatives is on recess, most of the House offices will be occupied by staff. In addition, the Senate will be open for business. So Washington Conference attendees should attempt to make their normal appointments for visits with their Congressmen's office.
